RAINING OUTSIDE, REIGNING INSIDE

A BRIEF INTERVIEW

WITH BEN LATINIK, COCOA CLUB CAPTAIN AND ALL AROUND QUALITY GUY

Darkness slowly creeps along the sidewalk.
A UFO lands, then leaves.
Nobody saw a thing.

FT: Hey Ben, thank you so much for joining us. What's 3 things you're grateful for today?

BL: For the rain/bracha, that we're chilling in yeshiva with such amazing rebbeim like Rabbi Varon and Reb Tzvi, and that my chicken survived until now!

FT: That was amazing.

BL: Thank you Hashem!

FT: Exactly how many gumballs are in this jar?

BL: 641.140815

FT: Ooh, off by .68! How old are you?

BL: Just turned 18.

FT: You are one sophisticated 18 year old, and we love it!

Thank you for coming!

BL: Thank you Hashem that I'm here! If anyone sees Tzippy the chicken, please let me know!

ANOTHER RAM

WITH MENACHEM DUBIN

In the parsha this week right after the מלאך told Avraham not to kill יצחק the pasuk says Avraham raised his eyes and saw another ram. What's another ram when did the Torah ever mention the first one??? It's very simple Avraham Avinu was on such a high level that as soon as HaShem told him to sacrifice his son יצחק he no longer looked at him as his son he saw him as a קרבן a ram and that's why the Torah says another ram.

Have an amazing Shabbos boys!

Purity of Speech improves my life because I become more aware of how I speak and what I hear. It makes me more conscious, more careful, and more kind. It helps me be more sensitive and loving to other people - and myself. Geulah here we come!!

GAME PLAN

WITH SHALOM WEISBERG

Good Shabbos! First off to everyone reading this, congratulations, you completed another week! You should be very proud of yourself that you had a good week! You were healthy, happy, and you did the things you wanted to do. I think that most people take for granted how hard they worked and are always telling themselves "I'm nothing", "I could have done more", and these are valid feelings - but you can't allow them to over take you. Because life is difficult and when you do well you must pat yourself on the back.

With that being said I would like to make a analogy between basketball and life. Here's how it goes. You got the ball and you're trying to score/set up your teammates/help yourself and your team win but then you got a defender (yetzer hara) and because you're such good players and you have many skills, so they put a really good defender on you, trying to get you to turn the ball over to miss your shot. If you think about it, that's how HaShem created the world - he made a yetzer hara to challenge us to make us better. If you're playing a game of horse and you win, it's not close to as satisfying as winning a tough game against a really good team. Because you had to dig deep to win as opposed to a easy game. Now let's say you're playing against a defender that's way better than you and you just can't beat him - what are you gonna do, just give up and be like "ok he's just better", no you would work on your skills, your shot, strength, speed, all of that stuff, so that you can come back and win. In life we set up a schedule for ourselves. A plan of action to make the day great. In basketball the coach makes a strategized game plan and the players try to execute the plan to their best abilities. Let's say the plan isn't working and the other team (yetzer hara) is winning so you call a time out. You go back to your coach (rebbe/therapist/parent etc) and you change the game plan. You ask for an assist from a teammate and you retry. Just like basketball, consistency is key. The more you work on your skills and practice the strategy, the better you play and bigger chance you have of winning. So my bracha to everyone is listen to your coach (rebbeim), anyone that you trust and listen to what they have to say, put it into action and through that we will be able to be the best us we can be!

love you all Good Shabbos!

KEDUSHAS ERETZ YISROEL

EPISODE IV
WITH RABBI EISENBERG

Although in the world there is much corruption and evil, however, being that Sedom and Amora were in Eretz Yisroel, and the Holy Land can't bear such evil, Hashem destroyed the area. It teaches us for generations, we're in a holy place. The palace of the King. May Hashem help us tap into the holiness!
